"Surahi", silver repousse, Mughal style, Lucknow, 20th century A.D.

Since the post-Mughal period, Lucknow was the centre of manufacture of decorative silver items. Silver utensils like this surahi or water-vessel were widely used in the royal Mughal households.

Background:

King on throne, enameled tile work, Persian (Qazari) Style, 19th century A.D.

The Qazari style represented the last phase of the school of Persian painting. Such tile work in geometric patterns is often seen on the exteriors of domes of Persian and Mughal monuments.
